THE ZERO HOUR.

With the genius for definition that pike. is not the least of the byproducts of Fogg Ave. war, the British soldier long ago named the moment of the order to go over the top "zero hour." Long before that moment came he was notified of it, and he waited through the night, ordinarily, for the hands of his ton. 1928 Cedar St., boy. illuminated watch to reach the hour. When they did that, the tumult of artillery gave place o a hush. The whistles of sergeants were heard. The artillery, lifted to 209 8th St., N., girl. some line farther in the rear, opened NASHVILLE GLOBE, cynic, considerable humor and unlim ited human philosophy in the term that Tommy devised. Perhaps the placing of a cipher by some general at the sign of the hour he had chosen gave rise to the expression. Perhaps a nervous trench jest, turning on the chill of fear, was responsible. But pital. with quick aptitude, whatever the occasion, Tommy seized it. And the hour of supreme test, the hour of cool facing of grave and underterminable things, became the zero hour. But zero hours existed long before they were named. And they exist in all walks of life as well as in the trenches. The body has its zero hours, and so does the mind. The Ave., S. soul has many of them. It is zero hour for the stricken man pital. who is carried to a hospital operating room, though he be thousands of miles from war. It is zero hour for Any erroneous reflections upon the character, standing or reputation of any person airm or corporation, which may appear in the columns of the management.

Walls close, or for whom the sudden fling into eternity is prepared. When anxieties and perplexities come to a focus and compell an irrevocable decision, that is zero hour for the mind, and the depression that is felt and the courage that is sometimes required are not to be thought of lightly. And there are moral tests, too, when the man or woman, the boy or girl, must choose, perhaps for all time, one way or another to walk in. the criminal about whom the prison time, one way or another to walk in.
